The Tiger line is giving the coaching is expected to report, staff more genuine anxie'; than at any time previously. Dillon, guard and captain of the 1907 team, came from New York with Edwards to see Saturday' game, and he did not seem too favorably impressed with the Tiger forwards. They lacked charge and that aggressiveness that gives the whole team power. Time and again the Tiger backs in the early part of the Stevens' game threw themselves against their line only to gain a vard and, at that, the visitors' line averaged 15 pounds to a man less than the Princeton forwards. McCormick and McLean played a large portion of the game on the right side of the line, and both of them fell far short of their ability. McLean showed ragged offensive tactics throughout the game, and Mc-Cormick, though good in flashes, did not show much class for a man of his

Wilson at left guard has the same old power that he showed last year. Nor-man, Phillips and Tiggs played beside Wilson at Monday's practise, and Phillips seems the most aggressive of the trio. Mr. Brooks' recommendations follow:

"1. Each high school headmaster shall be authorized to establish an athletic association with annual dues not to exceed 25 cents, membership to be limited to high school teachers and pupils, and all members to be admitted free of charge to all games or contests in Boston participated in by Boston high school pupils.

"2. All general equipment to be supplied at the expense of the school committee and no individual equipment, such as sweaters, saits, shoes and other material usable only by the individuals, shall be paid for from any funds used by the schools in connection with athletics. Such equipment must be supplied by the individual so using it.

"3. No school or athletic organization shall give or receive from contesting teams or organizations any financial consideration other than the actual traveling expenses of the players.

"4. That the athletic funds remaining in the hands of the high school headmasters on Jan. I, 1912, shall be used by them in furthering the general athletic interests of the schools in such way as each headmaster may determine." Mr. Brooks' recommendations follow:

NIGHT FOOTBALL WORK AT WILLIAMS

WULLIAMSTOWN-Coach Daly kept Williams varsity and scrubs at work until darkness Monday trying to improve the weak points shown in the game Saturday. The varsity was drilled in the interference work and afterward lined up with the scrubs for scrimmage work. During most of the time the varsity was kept on the defensive, blocking kicks and breaking up line plays. Afterward it took the ball and rushed it through the scrubs to the other end of the field, where Nagle succeeded in k'cking a goal from placement.

The entire backfield was given a short practise in the handling of punts after scrimmage was finished. Night sessions in the gyunasium for signal practise start this week and the training table for the 'varsity Legan Monday.

Gold Watch Traded for Chicago Ground Worth Millions

When you remember the story that a part of Chicago, now worth millions, was once traded for a gold watch, it almost takes one's breath away to realize that the same chance is staring one in the face today.

But in Prince Rupert, Fort George, Calgary, Edmonton and other hustling towns of the restlessly active, booming Canadian Northwest, values of lots have already taken a huge jump from an original price of $100 or $200 to the princely sums of $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 and even, in some cases, double that.

The same influence that developed the huge city fortunes in the United States is at work today in Canada, only on a wider, grander and more rapid scale. It is the railroad. Wherever it goes dreams come true and fortunes blossom on every side. The Grand Trunk Pacific is the newest railroad which is wedging its way into the enormously wealthy region of British Columbia. One of the greatest objective points is Fort Fraser, a city which is now in the making. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway grading camps are now within two miles of this future metropolis and the railroad will touch

Your grandchildren—possibly your own children—will know the story of how cort Fraser lots, worth big sums of money, sold in 1911 for $100 to $150, and these same lots should double, triple and perhaps-increase ten times in value even in your own day.

If you want to get in on this opportunity, you can do so on the easy terms of 10 per cent down and 5 per cent a month. A small saving will take care of the payments as they come along. All titles are guaran-teed by the British Columbia government, and no interest is charged. or taxes, until the lots are fully paid

SKIRT GIVES TUNIC EFFECT

Blouse has a big revers and a frill

GWNS made with skirts that give the tunic effect are among the smartest and latest. This one is chic yet it is quite simple. The tunic portion of the skirt is made in two pieces only; the foundation is five gored and is extended for full length at the sides to give the panel effect; at the front and back it is only a little deeper than the stitching. Such a combination has many advan-

The skirt is of less weight than if two materials are used throughout and at the same time economy is practised.

The blouse is distinctly new. It can be made just as illustrated, with a frill and big revers or, as shown in the small view, with the edges overlapped in surplice style over a shield.

In this instance one of the pretty new cheeked taffetas is combined with plain satin. The revers and frills are of handkerchief lawn and the collar and cuffs are of all-over lace, but such a skirt and blouse are susceptible of many treat-ments. Almost any two materials can be combined, while for the revers could be used all-over lace, or lace flouncing or fancy silk, chiffon, muslin or any pre ferred material.

Made as shown in the small view, the blouse requires only to be banded. There is a fitted lining over which the various parts are arranged.

For the medium size the blouse will require 2 yards of material 27 or 36, 1 yard 44 inches wide with % yard of all-over lace and I vard of handkerchief lawn to make as illustrated; for the tunic will be needed 3% yards 27, 21/2 yards 36 or 44 inches wide and for the foundation 134 yards 27 inches wide.

PEACH GRIDDLE CAKES

PEEL about five large peaches thin. Halve them and then shave off in slices. Sprinkle with sugar. Beat two eggs into a foam and add a pint of milk. Add one quarter cup of sugar, a sprinkle of salt and enough flour, into which a teaspoonful of baking powder has been stirred, to make the mixture into a pancake batter. Stir the peaches into the batter. Put the griddle on the range as you do for pancakes. Pour enough in the griddle for a cake and fry brown. Use all the batter this way. MR. BRYAN CREDIT FOR IDEA IN PEACE TREATY

LINCOLN, Neb .- "I ask you to rise, fill your glasses with the beverage upon which the Almighty has set the seal of His approval, and drink to President Taft, and may God give him wisdom to discharge aright the onerous duties imposed upon him."

This was the way William Jennings Bryan introduced President Taft to the 400 guests who attended the luncheon in his honor at the Commercial Club yes-

"I have had occasion to say in times past that no roses are so beautiful as those that grow over the party wall, and to be received by Mr. Bryan this time is a pleasure which I must express," said Mr. Taft in response.

"Mr. Bryan and I differ on some subjects, but the one on which I am going to speak this afternoon-world peaceis one on which we agree. But whether we agree or disagree, I have had a 10 years' personal acquaintance with Mr. Bryan, and I hope he will join me in saying that it always has been a pleasure to meet each other under any circum-

Mr. Taft gave Mr. Bryan credit for the pending treaties for arbitration between the United States and Great Britain and France. He referred to the clause creating a high joint commission to-consider questions of difference berecommendations.

"I am glad to say about that section," Other afternoon events will be the trial of draft horses and the judging of cattle, sheep and swine. So long is the list the prizes will hardly be all awarded today. He came to see me at Washington and said he thought it would greatly add to the efficiency of any agreement of this sort if we had a preliminary investigation that should by right last a year for negotiation and consideration, because he thought that the spending of that time would allay the fury and heat of pop-would allay added the President, "that the first time would allay the fury and heat of popular indignation and would be a long new president of step toward peaceful solution. It is a question of a treaty, a domestic question to be settled wholly by domestic law.

"I want to give you one instance of the very beneficial effects of the negotiations of these treaties. England was bound to Japan under treaty with Japan in such a way that it was doubtful-I would not say it was more than thatwhether, if she made an agreement to arbitrate everything with us, she was not violating an agreement with Japan by which she might be bound to fight us on something. What did Japan do?

"Japan notified England that so far as the arbitration between her and the United States was concerned, if it in any way abrogated their treaty of offensive and defensive alliance, then they abated their treaty to that extent.

Now I say that that was a distinct step forward, and it was the recognition by Japan of the wisdom of the treaties that we propose to make, and an expression of a hope perhaps not to be realized immediately, but an expression of hope by Japan that such treaties might increase and become more influentreatics, and I invoke your influence in that direction."

> Why is the soda cracker to-day such a universal food?

People ate soda crackers in the old days, it is true—but they bought them from a barrel or box and took them home in a paper bag, their crispness and flavor all gone.

Today there is a soda cracker which is the recognized staple - Uneeda Biscuit.

Uneeda Biscuit are the most nutritious food made from flour and should be eaten every day by every member of the family from the youngest to the oldest.

Uneeda Biscuit soda crackers better than any ever made before—made in the greatest bakeries in the world—baked to perfection—packed to perfection kept to perfection until you take them, oven-fresh and crisp, from their protecting package.

whole affair is expected to resolve into a general handshaking fest.

Apparently there is not even a discussion over the platform which has been written by George Fred Williams. This; according to report, will be much along the same lines as last year's platform with a little less space devoted to the planks on the downward revision of the tariff and the usual tederal issues, as this campaign on the part of the Democrats will be along strictly state lines.

Much of the time of the committee on resolutions has been devoted to pointing out what Governor Foss has accomplished, pleading for the continuance of those state issues on which he was elected a year ago and, by the performance of which, it is claimed, he has made a record on which he should be returned for another term.

The initiative and referendum and direct nominations will again be important planks of the platform while planks will be inserted recommending the abolishment of special commissions for the settlement of issues, the extension of rivil service regulations to county offices and the establishment of a state finance the United States Steel Corporation will follow in the footsteps of the International Marvester Company, with which it is closely affiliated. The attorney general has been successful in forcing the trusts into an greement which will revolutionize their isiness much the same as the reorganization now going on in the American Tobacco Company and Standard Oil Company. Before the end of the week he expects to have signed agreements from the powder trust, the barvester trust, the grocers trust and the electrical trust which will set forth in detail the manner of doing business in the future.

In the near future the attorney-general will take these agreements into a United States circuit court. By having the agreements take the form of a federal court decree, however, the trusts immediately place themselves in a position where they can be prosecuted for contempt of court the moment the court is satisfied the agreement has been broken.

NEW YORK-Charles P. Carruth, ounsel for P. E. Richardson, Jr., & Co., subsidiary of the American Tobacco Company, has filed a petition with the United States circuit court asking that the American company be enjoined from interfering with the business of the Richardson company.

This petition carries with it a complete denunciation of the plans of disintegration of the American Tobacco Company as now proposed.

Mr. Carruth states that the dissolution plan has no effectual safeguards to prevent the companies created out of the elements now united from being really, though secretly controlled by the same interests as at present.

WASHINGTON-The legal contest in the supreme court of the United States over the anti-trust proceedings against the principal Pennsylvania anthracite coal-carrying railroads and coal-owning companies, opened in earnest, when the Temple Iron Company, one of the defendants, filed a brief pleading of its side of the controversy. Oral argument is expected on Monday.

On the prohibition of third class building construction in the city limits the report offers reasons that large blocks of these all-wood structures, even although lying without the business limits. are a means of communicating the fire to the thickly built business districts, while their own extensive reach would. result in a disastrous fire.

Reasons given by the opponents to this move that second class construction would entail an unwarranted increase in the cost over the third class are re futed by the report and specific illus trations offered to show that on the other hand the additional expense is so small that owners could well afford to MONDAY CLUB rent at the old figures because of the saving in cost of maintenance.

First class construction exclusively in the future in the crowded district would be a decided economy for the community the report says, by vastly reducing the number and extent of fires, even although the cost might be considered by some hardship. The desire of the individual it says to reap a large return on his investment should be subordinated to the rights of the city as a whole.

Legislation is formulated in a proposed ordinance to define the building limits tess Mrs. Albert Humphrey; Oct. 16, curlimits." and to limit construction to first or second class. An act to restrict the fire hazard is appended with stipulations Rev. Charles R. Stock Market Reacts Moderately, Closing Featureless

A PROFESSIONAL TONE MANIFESTED IN STOCK MARKET

Prices Make Moderate Ad vance in Early Sales and Then Decline, Losing All the Gains-Rubbers Up

LOCALS/ ARE WEAK

Stocks are getting back into the same channel that marked the trading for a year and a half quiet and professional Outside buying is becoming less each day and traders do not anticipate another Ambent movement for some time to come unless something unexpected occurs to send stocks upward or downward. In other words it is a "drilling" market

Opening sales were at fractionally higher figures than Monday's closing quices. There was no marked activity m any security, but it was noted that Steel again managed to cross 62 in the early sales, indicating the support which came to it last week, when it looked as if the bottom was about to fall out of the entire market.

Canadian Pacific was strong. It was well bought abroad on the more favor able outlook for a speedy termination of the war between Italy and Luckey Interborough was another strong teat me - Consolidated tias held a good early advance. Stocks receded somewhat a the end of the first half hour.

Local stocks held tairly steady, with no presented feature in any direction There were some good offerings as stock advanced and prices did not remain long on the higher level. Toward mid day they had sold off a point or more bulan the opening Exceptsons were the 1 S. Rubber battes The common which has liven making a steady advance for several days, opened up is at 42's and rose 2 points. The second preferred open ed 6 points above the last previous sale

Steel opened up $\frac{1}{3}$ at 61^3 , and after advancing to 62^3 s, declined close to 60I mon Pacific opened up 1s, at 161 and Pressed Sicel of after improving slightly declined well ruis CCA SIL under 160. WESTERN ROADS REPORT SMALLER

CHICAGO Business of the western railroads is not as good as it has been for some time past. All traffic officials agree that there has been considerable falling off in the volume of general tonnage during the last fortnight. The most important decrease in shipments is noticed in general merchandise, which is beginning to show the loss of confidence of which so much has been said recently and also reflects more foreibly the dia position of manufacturers not to enlarge their operations until there has been a implete change in conditions; Railroads operating castword from Chicago and St. Louis last week, showed a further loss in tonnage, as compared with both the preceding week and the same week last year. Grain shipments were considerably lighter as were livestock, but there was a moderate in crease in flour and grain products and in provisions and packing house products. Miscellaneous freight, including general merchandise and machinery moved in a volume about equal to that of a year ago, Products of the iron and steel industry moved in moderate volume and somewhat under a year ago.

Industrial activity in the central territory which is covered by these roads is not as active as traffic officials expected at this time of the year and business is principally transacted on a hand to mouth basis. Long haul business over the trunk lines castward shows considerable de crease although short haul traffic holds up fairly well Officials of southern railroads report no material change in traffic or business conditions during the last two or three weeks, but say that the aggregate volume of tonnage is about normal for this season of the year.

There is no question that the action of the stock market and the attitude of the government in its determination to regulate the so called trusts and the defiance of the latter have greatly unsettled the general business situation and how long it will take to bring back a state of good business conditions remains to be seen, but it is the opinion of well-inform ed persons that a big political issue will be raised on the very factors that are now the chief disturbers and that the misiness situation will be affected adversely for another year.

BROOKLYN RAPID TRANSIT GAINS

The income of Brooklyn, Rapid Transit for September made a most satis 7 4 factory comparative gain of $129,000, o 9 an average of $4300 per day. Follow 3 4 ing the recent record increase of $4450 peculiarly satisfactory. It means that for the quarter to Sept. 30. Brooklyn 6's Rapid Transit gross increased nearly 33 4 8340,000, or at the rate of $1,020,000

It is expected that Brooklyn Rapid 32 32 31'2 31'2 Transit will be able this fiscal year to duplicate the record for the 12 months to June 30 and save nearly 45 per cent of the gain in gross for net profits In that event it is believed the company can show share profits of about 75 per cent, compared with to per cent in the 1911 year. There is practically certain to be considerable sentiment in the oard in favor of increasing the div dend rate to 6 per cent shortly after the turn of the new year and the argument sed will in all probability be the be lief that share profits will considerably exceed the 7 per cent mark.

FINANCIAL NOTES

The government cotton report indicates rop of about 13,800,000 bales. The basic pig iron average for Sep.

tember was $12.67 valley, or 33 cents below August average; Grain receipts at Chicago for Sentem ber were 17,974 cars, a decrease of 3703 40gd., an advance of 40gd. from August and 302 from September

As the world's largest toy market, New York's annual volume of trade in this product at wholesale prices totals A Paris cable says Societe Generale and Credit Lyonnaise leaned Berlin $60, 000,000 at 51, per cent to provide for . s. Oct. 1 settlement. During September 29 leading commod s ity prices out of aa rose to higher levels. Prices of 15 staples show slight declines compared with August this year, and 11 remain unchanged. The up state public service commis sion, New York, authorized Erie to sell $4,550,000 three year 5 per cent notes at not less than 97 to take up notes of

MASSACHUSETTS INCORPORATIONS

During September the Massachusetts ecretary of state issued charters to 93 mainess corporations, with $13,277,875 authorized capital. This compares with 10% new incorporations in August with $6,432,000 capital. The unusually large capital in September is explained by the incorporation of the Port of Roston Docks & Warehouse Company with $10,- 000,000 authorized capital. Since Jan. 1, 1044 companies have been incorporated under Massachusetts laws as compared with 955 during the corresponding period of 1910.

Beauty of New York as Seen by New Yorkers

There are critics courageous who never hesitate to pronounce upon an unfinished, ever-growing, ever-changing piece of work. There are critics prudential who take refuge behind its transitional aspect and suspend their judgment-clearly the safer course. But when the "piece of work" happens to be New York enlarging eagerly and with terrestrial boundaries so fixed that it has no choice but to expand skyward, one cannot delay his verdict. Certainly we who live in it or who, entering from its outskirts to our work, greet its towering mass each morning under the different aspects that un, mist, rain, snow impart, have already formed our opinion, premature and fondly biased though it may be. SELF-KNOWLEDGE

Citing Samuel Turner's book on mountain climbing the New York Sun shows what endurance and determination are needed and what slow, careful effort, step by step, for the conquest of the great mountain peaks of the world. The two-edged sword of Principle and practice must be wielded fearlessly by the Christian soldier in order to overcome all evil with good. It is the reflected good that is found in man's true character that gives him courage to fight and win the good fight, and as evil beliefs are cast out of human consciousness the true character of real manhood proportionately appears.

If self-knowledge were acquired by all mankind, just think what a change would come over society. No one would ever think of being selfish, egotistical, unkindly critical, or unjust, because each would know his own individual worth and would demonstrate it perfectly. Chicago's Proposed Waterfront Park

UTILIZATION of earth excavated for street and building improvements and of the debris that results from reconstruction for landmaking, by the process familiarly known as "filling," is common to all communities. The topography of many cities has been completely changed in this manner. Boston, originally an island, and up to a very few years ago confined to a fraction of its present land area by tidewater inlets of dimensions large enough to be called bays, is an illustration of this fact. Redemption of marshland and bayland has been going on in Boston for a century and it is not concluded yet. The earth excavated in the leveling of Fort Hill and the debris of the great fire of 1872 contributed to the making of building property worth many millions. Likewise, in and around Boston, parks and playgrounds of immense permanent value have been created by the "filling in" method.

Many other cities that might be named have had, and are having, a similar experience in their efforts to find room for business and recreation. Chicago is one of them. The central part of that city was originally a swamp. The grade of streets now within the "loop" had to be raised from twelve to sixteen feet that the city might be properly drained. The present beautiful Michigan boulevard was partly a line of sand dunes, and the district known as the Lake Front, including Grant park, in which the recent great military review took place, was covered by Lake Michigan. A large part of this strip was made from the debris of Chicago's great fire of 1871.

Included in the "Chicago plan," designed by eminent architects under the auspices of the Commercial Club, is a scheme for the creation of a waterfront park on a more magnificent scale than any previously considered within the bounds of feasibility. This contemplates a park to extend from Jackson park, site of the World's Columbian exposition, to the northern limits of the city, at Evanston, a distance of about sixteen miles. It is proposed to build a retaining wall for this distance, sufficiently removed from the present water line, and to fill in behind it, after the manner followed in the making of Grant park, with the waste and rubbish of the city.

The making of such a strip of parkway by the process of "filling" will take some years, no doubt, but from the time the retaining wall is built it will be in the making. An ambitious plan. it is worthy, of the restless energy and tireless enterprise of

News comes from Emigrant Gap, Cal., to the effect that Aviator Robert G. Fowler has abandoned his transcontinental flight for the reason that the engine of his aeroplane will not "bite the thin air" of the Sierras. This statement will arouse memories among early westerners and students of the West. At every step taken to bring that great section of the country into subjection there has been something that claimed to be an insuperable obstacle. It was the plains that could not be crossed or cultivated, or the desert and the mountains that could not be safely penetrated. It was the tornado, the drought, the prairie fire, the alkali water, the ever-alluring, ever-receding mirage. If these, or any one of them, had been taken seriously by the empire-makers of fifty or sixty years ago, no prairie schooner, no pony express, no stage coach, no railroad train, would ever have crossed the continent.

Of course, the thin air of the Sierras which Mr. Fowler's engine is unable to bite will, nevertheless, be bitten. Obstacles far greater than this stood between the argonaut and the settler and the other side of the Sierras more than half a century ago; but pick and axe and shovel, and, later on, plow and spade and hoe, bit through and proved themselves masters of the situation.

The thin air of the Sierras came to those magnificent pine-clad regions ages ago and is likely to stay for ages to come. The mountain ranges that lie between the valley of the Sacramento and the valley of the Mississippi will hardly be crossed by the aeroplane if that machine and those who navigate it are to wait for the air to become thicker. What is needed is not a change of mountain air but an aeroplane engine that will bite it, and this need seems as certain to be met as that the need of mighty cuts, of tunnels, of embankments, of mile after mile of snow-breaks and snow-sheds, was met before the locomotive forced its way across those barriers.

In all the great West today there is nothing that speaks more eloquently of the triumph of intelligence and energy over nature in her most stubborn and repellent moods, than the works, past and present, of the men who forced their way into its great mountains and made them as docile as the valleys beneath.

Mexico's Great Step Forward

In Mexico, as in the United States, candidates for the presidency and vice-presidency are voted for by the people indirectly. Mexico, again like the United States, is a wide country, but, unlike its northern neighbor, it is not possessed of those means of communication which would enable it to assemble promptly the returns of a national election. The result of Sunday's voting will determine, of course, who the next President shall be, but the vice-presidency, in all probability, must be settled by the Chamber of Deputies, a body constituted similarly to the American House of Representatives. While nothing is definitely known regarding the vote for President up to this time, beyond the fact that the City of Mexico and the district influenced by metropolitan opinion have gone overwhelmingly for Senor Madero, there is reason to believe that the election of the revolutionary chieftain is secured by majorities that will leave no room for doubt or contest. This is not likely to be the case with regard to the vice-presidency. The race between Pino Suarez, on the Madero ticket, and De la Barra, candidate of the Clerical party, will, in all probability, be so close that the electoral college cannot decide upon the winner, in which event the popular branch of Congress will be forced to take the matter in hand.

In reality, the most important phase of the election is the fact that, being the first approaching anything like a popular presidential decision as it is understood in this country, it seems to have passed off in an orderly manner throughout the republic. A correspondent writing from the City of Mexico says that a visit to numerous polls on election morning revealed conditions better than those that obtain in certain quarters of American cities under similar circumstances. The provisional President, Senor de la Barra, in whose word the American people have confidence, states that the police and military took no hand in the election save to preserve order, and only in few instances were their services required.

More important to Mexico than the success or failure at the polls of any individual is the proof here found of the increasing ability of the Mexicans to govern themselves. Men may come and men may go, but if this splendid step is followed by others of like character, the neighboring republic will soon have passed beyond either the necessity or the fear of dictatorships.

A Marvel for All

MANY very remarkable things are happening in this age; man's ingenuity to man shows forth such marvels as would exhaust a thousand bards in chanting; airships go up and down and all about; moving pictures bring Cathay and Ind within twenty yards of us; we talk across continents and whisper almost across the oceans; the wonders of the kindly work of chemist and physicist seem as though they would never cease. These things are incontestable and all men welcome them, but they cannot be had of all or done or seen of all. The men that make these wondrous things for our delight and profit have most of them endured a long and rigorous apprenticeship; a minute in the public view has been distilled from a year in the laboratory, nothing has been done without hard work, long hours and steadfast trust in an ideal through the long day and night of waiting, Through this and that circumstance these marvels cannot be wrought by us that must do other things. On this field of wholesome glory we must be content to applaud and to give thanks that man can thus express himself. But there is a marvel that we shall warrant to outshine all of the feats that we have recounted and to be of such a brilliance as to outshine all the lightening in the heavens. It is in every one's power to do, it needs no apparatus, it takes little time, and it can be ever fresh and pleasant to behold. Little children can perform it, women and grown men, and all have great reward for it, a reward that stretches the world over and can be put in the palm of the hand. It has to do with painting, with poetry, with politics and with the good of mankind. It makes sunlight at night and makes cool the most scorching places at high noon; it is very encouraging at all seasons, and it is that marvel wrought when the face of a man is lit by kindness done.

Strictly speaking, one place is as good as another to perform this wonder; but we must take things as we find them, therefore as at the present moment some seem to need a little more encouragement than others, we would recommend that the wonder take place in those spots where men and women have a good deal of work to do that is not always of their own choosing and sometimes does not win the greatest money return. Go to one of these places and stoutly experiment; there may be chosen a spot quite without ordinary romance, but it will make the contrast only the brighter and more instructing. There one shall see a man hard in labor of some kind, not very smiling, not very good-natured to our eyes, perhaps with the air of defensive resentment that can bring no good to any. As the circumstances prompt, say some kindly word or do some kindly thing. At once, one sees another man; there has not been transformation, but remaking; a light gleams in his face that, whether one will or no, illumines the charter of brotherhood.

If for no more than a fragment of a second there has been such an intimacy and candor of understanding between two men as shall be an everlasting guide to the common good. Claim and counterclaim, assertion and denial, have for a time been silenced and two people have forgotten selfishness. Confidently we recommend the marvel to all; it costs no admission fee, it needs no arena, it gives a great reward if none other than that one is taught a possibility and given a chance of looking at men and things in a new way."

THE mayor of Indianapolis, in selling 500 bushels of potatoes * at cost, has brought down the market price per bushel in his city from $1.40 to 85 cents. The latter price leaves a margin of only 10 cents a bushel in profit between the producer and consumer. This is probably not too great for the "middleman" who pays rent, taxes, salaries, light, heat and telephone charges, takes the good potatoes with the poor ones and can sell only the best at the regular price. Of course, a mayor who doesn't have to meet any of these charges, but sells right from the farm wagon, could pay off the municipal debt in a short time, if only he sell potatoes enough.

WHEN three or four comets with heads several million miles in diameter and tails several million miles in length can be seen shooting through space at a distance of several million miles from one another, it really ought to be possible for Mr. Atwood and Mr. Ely to make an ascent in aeroplanes without colliding.

This nation, of course, is neutral in the Turko-Italian difficulty but its general attitude toward that sort of thing is known to be of a positive stamp. This may not at present affect Italy or Turkey directly, but it doubtless affects and influences nations to which they look for approval or sympathy.

THERE seems to be no sound reason why an industrial exposition in the center of the greatest industrial section of the country should not take on the dignity, as well as the attractiveness, of a national enterprise.

IT APPEARS to be universally conceded now that the latest attempt to revive the hoopskirt has also failed. It does seem that things are not going this year altogether as the steel trade would have them.

THE New York Times says that Times square was once all woods. Herald and City Hall squares, also, perhaps. This may account for their popularity with editors.

of the fact that war has lost its glamour. The powers are coming to be as tired of it as the people.

ONE of the satisfying phases of the Tripoli affair is its disclosure

A NICE thing about what Baron d'Estournelles de Constant says about the United States and its people is that it is manifestly sincere.

OCEAN-TO-OCEAN aviators are doubtless waiting until the transcontinental lines reduce the rates.

CRITICISM from high and responsible quarters continues to pile up at the door of persons responsible for failure to make of the Charles river basin and its adjacent Boston and Cambridge parks the center of popular resort. sport and uplift that it was meant to be when projected. By next spring, no doubt, plans will be perfected that will modify much of the dissatisfaction and put responsibility where it really belongs, namely on the people whose taxes built the basin and parks and whose children and youth are likely to be the chief recipients of its possibilities for good.

Of the general desire that the basin and parks be managed with popular service in view, there can be no doubt. Persons who have led in making officials understand this, and who have challenged the obstructive tactics of Boston owners of land adjacent to the region have done a distinct social service. But given a broader policy of administration, and more facilities for sports next season, will the public then rise to its opportunity? Probably not without a direct process of education, and distinct provision by the city's many organizations of plans that include definite use of the region.

The blame, we believe, is by no means wholly official, so far as there has been remissness in the past. The people do not see yet what lies waiting at their doors. They need to learn much about getting pleasure from nearby things, at little expense; they need to acquire the habit of living and eating out of doors, and should become even more used to sports that are aquatic. Recent experiments on the Charles, as a competitive course for showing off the prowess of the rising generation of youth, have evidenced beyond cavil that much can be done with it in that way. For adults who wish to set a less strenuous pace of exertion, who would enjoy the combination of water view and sky vista while listening to good music and simply basking in the sun and air, there remains much to be done in the way of innovation and experiment.

New Americans Watching Strife

THE marked increase of emigration to the United States from lands adjacent to the Mediterranean during the past decade and a half has substantially altered the make-up of the American audience that watches any war waged in that quarter of the world or any controversy threatening war. Since Turkey last defeated Greece, both Greek and Turkish "nationals" have entered America with a rush; hence any renewal of the feud over Crete by officials at Athens or Constantinople is instantly reflected in New York or Lowell, in quarters where the issue is a burning one to persons who have memories that include battle and rapine. So when, recently, it was a question of the extent to which the Albanian uprising against Young Turkey would go, there were fierce disputations about it in many a New England manufacturing center where several of the many races that inhabit Turkey have planted themselves down as successors of the earlier colonies of French-Canadian and Irish mill operatives.

In this phase of the clash between Turkey and Italy there is considerable interest now that could not have emerged had the time been a generation ago. Then Italians were only beginning that flight hither which has since attained the dimensions of an invasion. But of Christian or Mohammedan subjects of the Ottoman state there then were very few, to be counted by tens where now there are

When Germany and France fought in 1870, the dominant opinion of the country went with Germany, in part owing to the larger proportion of emigrants from Germany who had settled here, and also because of American distrust and dislike of Napoleon III. Today a very much larger proportion of the population is Italian than is either Armenian, Syrian or Turkish. Ties between Italy and the United States exist that originated in religion, literature and art. Whether American sympathy will go to Italy on this account, irrespective of the justice of her course in the light of international ethics, remains to be seen.

Yet another detail worth watching is the degree of loyalty to Turkey shown by her subjects now in America who are not Ottomans. Citizenship under the Sultan's rule for an Armenian or Syrian Christian has not always been so delectable as to make him wildly patriotic as a Turk when in the empire. How far American experience may have increased or weakened that nationalism will be indicated by current happenings in the centers where the Sultan's subjects are busy trafficking and manufacturing.

THE United States has so long been identified with the tropical fruit business that it comes somewhat as a surprise that the northern Dominion is making strenuous efforts to participate in the export trade from both the West Indies and Central America. The large American concern, which, in a measure, has controlled banana cultivation and exportation, has for some time paid as much attention to Central

Canada After the Banana Trade

American countries as to Jamaica, whence, in the first instance, the larger amount of bananas came to the United States. Whether the defeat of reciprocity has had anything to do with recent movements for Canadian participation on a large scale in the American fruit trade, the fact remains, according to reports, that important Canadian banking interests have not only combined for the purpose of an aggressive business campaign, but that a large German steamship company has been included in the pact to compete with the United States company for the export trade. The latter, of course, is so solidly entrenched, both financially and with respect to ownership of plantations, that in Central America, at any rate, the newcomers will very likely find difficulty should they attempt to wrest the business from the established concern. As for Jamaica, there may be some reason why the Canadian concern expects to meet with immediate success. In certain quarters in that Caribbean island there is a strong sentiment for closer business arrangements with the Dominion. The business progress of Porto Rico has led Jamaicans to feel that more can be done for their own island.

There seems to be slight reason why two large banana companies should not operate successfully, even if identical territories are to be the scene of operations. The demand for this fruit is now enormous. If competition will tend to cheapen prices then the public may get the benefit in the long run. Besides, the imperial trade policy of Great Britain may open up new channels for the consumption of the popular product of the tropics.
